1. The small fishing town of Leba lies a little over 50 km. to the east of Ustka near a large lake, which is divided from the sea by a sand dune that is mostly wooded and in places 15 to 20 meters above sea level.
2. At a point about 4 kilometers west of Leba, between the shore and the inland sea (see sketch attached), there is a former German launching ramp for V-Weapon, which is of underground construction.
3. This construction had fallen into neglect and suffered from the ravages of a number of souvenir hunters. A change came in April 1948 when the ramp was taken over by the UB (Security Corps) detachment from Leba. From then on unsuspecting visitors were arrested.
4. In June 1948 building material had been dumped near the ramp but no start had been made with any construction or repair work.
